DEDICATING A NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Exercises That Were Held Yesterday Afternoon in No. 16.

ADDRESS BY PROFESSOR HOWELL

It Was an Eloquent Effort .- His Subject Was Patriotism -- Addresses Also Delivered by Judge H. M. Edwards and Members of the Board of School Control .- Handsome Flag Presented to School.

The 'new No. 16 school, on Chestnut street, Fourteenth ward, was dedicated yesterday with special public exercises held in the spacious third floor of the new building. The school children with their respective teachers were seated in the front of the impro-

Fellows, secretary of the school board; Professor E. A. Cruttenden, principal of the school, and the following members of the school board: George Carson, Benson Davis, John Casey, W. J. Welsh and John Gib-

T. J. Jennings, school controller of After the school had sung "America" the pupils rendered an entertaining programme. The second division of the exercises was devoted to the dedication proper. Chairman Jennings introduced Superintendent of Schools Howell, who spoke on "Patriotism," a subject sug-gested to him by the fact that the pupils of No. 16 had, themselves, collected enough money to purchase a handsome American flag, which was formally presented to the school. vious to the presentation Miss Eda Bonner and Blanche Conklin, both pupils read a "History of Old No. 16" and a "Description of New No. 16." r spectively, Master Ralph Bunnell made a neat presentation address. After bowing to the audience they left the platform. The school sang "Flag of the Free," The flag in all its beauty was stretched across the rear of the stage, forming a background for the esteemed gentiemen of the day. Professor Howell's address was timely and of a character in line with school life. It was as fol-signified, the nation itself, is wanting in that civic education which constitutes the highest and noblest citizenship. It is not simply an emblem signifying valor, peace and truth, but a record, a history of the sacrifices made by noble men and

No man can love that flag and be ignorant of its history; know that it was the banner held aloft by Washington and cheered by his armles; the flag that inspired the patriots in Valley Forge; the flag that created a new born hope at Yorktown; the flag that floated the seas in 1812 and commanded the respect of Eng-lishmen; the flag that floated over Sumter when Beguregard made the heavens rain shot and shell; the flag that guided Grant in the Wilderness and led his advancing hosts, fighting for civil rights and the equality of men. Know all this, then its real significance will dawn upon you and center your admiration where it belongs, in the ratios and its bistory.

in the nation and its history.

But, do not misunderstand me from the historical facts cited. To associate patriotism at all times with belching cannon, smoking artillery, flashing sabres and bloody battlefields is a most serious blunder. Patriotism is not for the tented delta for a It belows in the workshop. field alone. It belongs in the workshop, the counting room, the market place, the school room, the halls of legislation and the courts of justice.

We must not fall to understand the meaning of patriotism, a civic virtue ranked pre-eminently above all others. It is not a dress-parade emotion that sweels and bursts on national holidays and then subsides until some drum and fife stirs it into action. No, it is not a compound of sensibility and emotion. compound of sensibility and emotion. It does not consist entirely of feeling. Its best expression is in constant action. A day," Recitations were also nicely took up the space in the rear. On the man may be thrilled by the "Star unworthy of liberty for five minutes in the absence of his teacher. Patriotism is not a plant of mushroom growth, it is the offspring of a liberal education. It grows by patient toil out of individual work that fosters true national greatness.

And with you, teachers, rests the responsibility of inculcating and implanting civic virtues in the minds and hearts of these children. O, dark is our future and the future of the nation if there is no desire in your hearts to train our boys and girls to become patriots, men who love good government and despise corruption and fraud. If we are to continue as a free, pros-perous and happy people, our children must be taught that the world is full of solemn questions that are to be settled only through such intelligence and integrity as is possessed by themselves. Further, that our public acts are just as sacred and should be viewed with just as much solicitude as our private ones.

After Professor Howell had received the applause of the assemblage Chairman Jennings paid a nice compliment to Judge H. M. Edwards, introducing him as one of the honored speakers of the day. Judge Edwards refrained from making a lengthy speech. He spoke of the beauty of the new building, how well it shows from a distance and from the fact of the ancient type of architectural Judge Edwards approved the idea of extending the imag-inary powers of the student. He suggested that flowers and fountains be placed around the school grounds and addressing the members of the school board, Judge Edwards endeavored to again impress upon them the virtue of a cultivation of the esthetic taste.

School Controllers Welsh and Carson were then introduced; also Mr. Blewitt, who thirteen years ago represented the Fourteenth ward. Professor Cruttenden, in behalf of the teachers and pupils, thanked the board for their new home After a song, "Red, White and Blue" the exercises were over.

The building was afterward inspected by those present. The exercises given by the children of the school were very interesting. William Hayes delivered a fine address of welcome, followed by recitations by Miss Anna Weisenfluh and Frank Mills, two clever elecution-Lottie Veckroth, Louise Simon, ists. Anna Rose, and Lucy Faust, gave an exhibition of club swinging, and Ruth Thomas recited; also Belle Mabey. Both did well. Seven girls in costume performed a pretty little thing called "The Rainbow." They were: Rachel Jones, Lena Koch, Louise Simon, Ella Weisenfluh, Lucy Faust, Lida McCabe, and Lizzie Simon. A very neat souvenir programme was presented to each visitor.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Several of the students of this side held exercises yesterday afternoon in commemoration of Monday's birth anniversary of George Washington. At No. 18 school the publis gave a programme; also, at No. 14 school. 13 school, Professor Henry Kemmerling teacher, friends of the pupils gathered and listened to a rendering of a say, "Celebrating Washington's Birth-day," Recitations were also nicely given by Mamie Burchell, "Washington's Brave Deeds:" Nettle Reiten-auer, "The Tempest;" Lizzie Dayls, "Flowers for Washington;" Leola Highfield, "The Call for Washington:" Lizzie Harvey, "The Vow of Washington;" Elmer Jenkins, "Grand Review;" Elisworth Keily, "Some New Hatchets;" Ralph Collins, "True Happiness; Elias Jones, "The Greatest Man of His "Washington's Hatchet and Thomas, Gun;" Willie Williams, "Crown Washington a Hero;" Tommy Thomas, "We Washington's Birthday. IT WAS NOT BUTTER.

Food Inspector Cullen after an analysis of the specimens of the stuff sold for butter by Henry Weisberg yesterday reported that two of the five cakes he had examined are oleomargarine, colored fat. As oleomargarine is not unhealthy the food inspector is not authorized by the city board of health to proceed against the guilty persons. The case has been placed in the hands of Constable Timothy Jones It is likely that Constable Jones will refer the case to the state food inspec-tor. There is a fine of $100 for the offence. The harness case will be laid at the door of J. C. King and he will be called upon this morning to answer the charge of receiving stolen goods.

BROTHERS ARRESTED.

The McNicholas boys on Fourteenth street have become notorious as toughs and their poor old father. William, has more than once felt that "sharper than a serpent's sting is a thankless child." One on the Prencher.

The following dialogue recently oc-curred in an English country church when the rector was catechising the chil-dren. "What is your name?" he asked a strapping girl of 13, the only daughter of the village boniface. He received reply. "What is your name?" said ainister, in a more peremptory way, "Nin o' yer fun, parson; ye kna ma neame verra weel. Duon't ye say, whan ye're at our house on a nect, Bet, bring me a pint o' yell?" The congregation, in spite of the sacredness of the place, was on a broad grin.

The Smile of Greeting. Why do we not always smile whenever we meet the eye of a fellow-being? That is the true recognition which ought to pass from soul to soul constantly. Little children in simple communities do this involuntarily, unconsciously. The honest-hearted German peasant does it. It is like magical swalight all through that simple land, the perpetual greeting on the they pass by each other never without a smile,—Helen Hunt.
